Stops the Oral Fixation. NIPIT was designed to stop thumb sucking and finger sucking, but it really stops the oral fixation altogether. By contrast, thumb guards and finger guards are worn on the hand and kids often transfer the habit from sucking the thumb to sucking a finger, or to chewing on the thumb guard. The key to breaking the habit is first understanding that it is an "oral fixation," not just a desire to suck on the thumb or fingers.

In 1995 MED et al, Inc. offered a new approach to treat habitual (chronic) thumb sucking – ThumbGuard™ (TGuard™). Though the general concept of covering the thumb (or fingers) has been tried in the past, our attempts to refine the fastening system and the thumb cover itself were very successful. This patented concept was finalized into a treatment kit based on the proven fact that most habits, including sucking thumbs or fingers, can be broken if it not exercised for at least 3 weeks.
